| KATHLEEN WILSON | REFERENCE TECHNICIAN |
|                 | (Library Bulletin)   |

The reference technicians are part of the team which makes certain that you get the information you want.

Alán Miller has worked in the Library in a variety of capacities for 9 years. In addition to providing information and help at the Reference Desk, he is responsible for maintaining the Molindex database of journal articles, and other materials in the area of labour.

You will also meet Ann Lum at the Reference Desk. Ann came to the Library over 7 years ago from the Catalogue and Checklist Service of the government. She is responsible for entering occupational health and safety information into the Molindex database.

The Library Bulletins which are distributed each month are largely a result of the work of Alan, Ann and Kathleen. They generate many requests for articles and other documents, and it is Kathleen Wilson who fills these requests. She photocopies material and sends it to requestors within and outside of the Ministry. Kathleen also maintains a file of newspaper clippings related to Ministry concerns, and serves occasionally at the Circulation Desk. She has worked in the Library for the past 6 years.

STAFF NEWS

SANDRA GOLD joined the Library's permanent staff as Labour Librarian on December 14, 1987. She came to the Ministry of Labour with many years' experience in special and academic libraries. Sandra will be glad to help you with your information needs in the areas of industrial relations, employment standards and working conditions, and women's issues.

NEW SERVICES

UPCOMING MEETINGS is a new alerting service in this issue of the Bulletin. This list will inform you of selected conferences in the fields of Occupational Health and Safety and Labour.

The library now offers a search service on CANSIM, the Statistics Canada database of selected time series data. There is a charge for this service.

Beginning with the current session of the Ontario Legislature, the HANSARD DEBATES are being indexed for labour related issues by Library staff. Using the Oracle database management system, the debates can be retrieved by topic, subject, speaker and other identifiers.

These services are available to Ministry of Labour staff only. For further information, please call Sandra Gold, Brian Morrison, or Dolly Lyn at 965-1641.

TECHNICAL SERVICES

OLIVIA HAMILTON
IAN KELLOGG
HELEN LONG
THOMAS TU

SENIOR SERIALS TECHNICIAN
HEAD OF UTLAS TECHNICAL OPERATIONS
ACQUISITIONS TECHNICIAN
JUNIOR SERIALS TECHNICIAN

These four people are part of the Technical Services team that works mainly behind the scenes to order, catalogue and process all materials acquired by the library.

Olivia Hamilton came to the Ministry 7 years ago from Scotland where she trained and worked as a library technician in public and college libraries. She orders and catalogues all serial publications and standing orders and serves regularly on the Reference Desk.

As Head of Utlas Technical Operations for the past 6 years, Ian Kellogg maintains the library's catalogue on the Utlas system. He also assists users at the Reference Desk. Ian is currently completing his Masters degree in Library Science at the University of Toronto.

Helen Long orders all non-serial publications for the library, and for branches and satellite collections in the Ministry. She came to the library from the Ministry of Health when the Occupational Health and Safety Collection was transferred to the Ministry of Labour 10 years ago. Kathleen Wilson, from Public Services, is currently filling this position while Helen is on a temporary leave.

Thomas Tu has worked in the Library for over 7 years. He is responsible for receiving and distributing all mail, and for recording, processing, claiming and routing the almost 3000 periodical and other serial publications received by the Library.

SPOTLIGHT: ONLINE DATABASES

Quick access to worldwide sources of information is what online database searching is all about. The hundreds of databases available through the Ministry Library leave few subjects untouched. As an employee of the Ministry, you can tap into this information resource by simply contacting the Library and asking for one of the reference librarians: Sandra Gold, for questions relating to labour relations, employment, and human rights; or Brian Morrison, for questions relating to occupational health and safety.

For the health and safety professional, there are a growing number of databases providing information on safety engineering, ergonomics, occupational health and diseases, epidemiology, occupational hygiene, chemical toxicology, mine safety and radiation protection. In addition to these, you also have access to general science and engineering databases, newspaper databases for the latest press coverage and legal databases for legislation and case law.

What kind of information will I receive? Basically, two types or formats exist. First is bibliographic information -- a list of books, reports and periodical articles on the subject searched arranged by author and title and often giving an abstract. Or, secondly, numeric information -- toxicity values, exposure limits, analytical data. In addition, there are a number of databases providing M.S.D.S. (material safety data sheet) information which combines both bibliographic and numeric data.

How is this information presented? You will receive a "printout" on the subject you have requested. This may take the form of an M.S.D.S. if you had asked for a chemical profile. Or, you will receive a list of relevant books or articles from which you may choose to see certain items.

How do I get copies of the actual documents listed on the printout? Just call the Library and we will endeavour to forward the material to you in the shortest time possible. Often the items you need are right here in our collections. If not, we will tell how long it will take to retrieve your requests.

But I need information on this topic regularly? No problem! The Library can provide you with a regular update of new information on any subject you request -- weekly, monthly or quarterly. Just ask us about our current awareness S.D.I. program. (No, not "Star Wars" -- Selective Dissemination of Information.) It's all very easy. Our telephone number is: (416) 965-1641.

PLEASE NOTE: Online search services are limited to employees of the Ministry of Labour.
